NOTES:

World Championships... Wiley Peterson Team ASE cowboy, 24, Pocatello, Idaho, was never out of the top 15 the entire season.

Peterson on the World Championships..."The final's long round was a little hard on me...I felt something pop and I got pretty stiff, but I made it into the short round and nothing was going to keep me off that bull," said Peterson. "I was pretty happy about drawing Bells Blues. At first I thought I had Big Bucks (2005 PBR bull of the year) and I wasn't too excited about that. But after Bells Blues slammed me to the ground I think I might have liked Big Bucks better. He belly rolled so hard that I thought he had fallen down. That's one of the hardest buck-offs I can remember in a long time. I feel okay today but am sore. I called Tandy and he said that I probably have a hip flexor. He said that if it's a tendon problem it won't get better on it's own, but if it's a muscle thing I'll just be sore. I'm feeling better each day and am hoping that it's just a muscle thing."

Peterson is heading to Hawaii... "I'm excited to be going," said Peterson. "I get to take the whole family, so it should be a lot of fun."

NOTES:

World Championships... Dan Henricks Herculiner cowboy, Woodward, OK. Injuries have plagued him and he only rode in 17 out of the 29 regular season events. He still qualified for the World Championships.

Henricks on the World Championships..."At least I got one rode," said Henricks. "Obviously, not my best finals but I didn't finish dead last. This year is behind me and I'm looking forward to 2007."

Henricks is starting his 2007 season this weekend... "I'm heading to two touring Pro events this weekend," said Henricks. "One is in N.C. and the other in Pennsylvania...it's a new year. I'm healthy other than my wrist being a little sore after seven bulls at the World Championships. It's nothing serious and I'm really ready to get a jump on the new year."
